Comment on investment of the portfolio during the last accounting period November 17, 2015 to October 31, 2016

Market Summary

The global economy grew moderately amid a generally accommodative monetary policy environment. The U.S. Federal Reserve raised interest rates for the first time in almost a decade as the economic recovery. Global financial liquidity remained high, the ECB delivered further QE in early December including taking deposit rates further into negative territory as well as extending the asset purchase programme and the BOJ adopted negative interest rates for the first time ever. Accommodative monetary policies and low interest rates will supported equities markets.
